The biggest game day of the year is upon us. Super Bowl XLVIII kicks off Sunday evening at the MetLife Stadium, just across the Hudson from New York. Tickets to see the game in person start at $2,090; the cheapest suite goes for $450,000. While fans of the Broncos and Seahawks will be huddling outside in chilly temperatures to stay warm, some 108 million of us will tune in to watch in the comfort of our homes.

Whether you follow the game, just like to watch and tweet about the hyped-up commercials, or tune into the high-wattage halftime show, there's no better time to invite some friends over for a viewing party. In this latest Creative Entertaining video, here are a few suggested ways to throw your own Super Bowl party at home.
